

Special Circumstances

During the course of conversation you may discover information that will give the admission committee a better context for understanding a student's credentials. Perhaps a death in the family or divorce adversely affected a student's performance. This kind of information could greatly assist the admission committee.

Questions Students Ask

Be prepared to answer questions! Generally, students who request an interview already know about B-W and are seriously considering applying. As always, do not attempt to answer questions about which you are unsure! Students may have very specific questions about an academic curriculum; parents may want information about financial aid; they may want to know the record of one of our athletic teams. If you encounter questions you cannot answer, call the admission office. We will give you the information, and you can follow up with the student.

Follow-Up and Evaluation

After the interview, complete the interview evaluation form as soon as possible. The interview evaluation is an important part of the application file.

Be assured that your report will be considered carefully in the selection process and carries equal weight with interviews done by admission counselors. Your perspective as an APART member is very valuable, particularly with regard to such intangible characteristics as intellectual curiosity, motivation, fit, and potential. We will notify you of the outcome of your interviewee's application and decision at the end of admission process.
