 Early American Popular and Literary Culture. This course will focus on American poetry, short prose, and novels from the 16th century to the 1820s. Readings will emphasize the wide multi-national and multicultural world of early America, and the ways in which themes such as freedom/captivity, heaven/hell, masculine/feminine, and public/private shape the period's rich "popular" and "literary" culture.

ENG-316-S02 American Renaissance 4 09:55AM-11:35AM TTH MART 208 T. Martin
 Preq: Six hours of literature (ENG-126F, 127F, 128F, or one of the former and one of ENG-241IF, 242IF, 250F, 280IF, or the equivalent in transferred credits).
 Examination of the classic phase of American literature (1836-1860) with a focus on transcendentalism, Romanticism, and feminist and abolitionist literature including readings by Emerson, Thoreau, Poe, Hawthorne, Melville, Stowe, Douglass, Fuller and others.

ENG-316D-S03 American Fiction Since WWII 4 01:20PM-02:25PM MWF MART 209 N. Wurzel
 Preq: Six hours of literature (ENG 126F,127F,128F, or one of the former and one of ENG-241IF,242IF,250F, 281IF, or the equivalent in transferred credits).
 An examination of literary postmodernism, especially experimentation with myth and form. Perspectives on American identity and experience varied by gender, race, and culture. Includes Vonnegut, Nabokov, Morrison, Erdrich, and others.

ENG-328I-S01 Major Authors: Chaucer 4 10:40AM-11:45AM MWF MART 209 S. Oldrieve
Preq: 6 hours of literature (ENG 126F, 127F, 128F, or one of the former and one of ENG-241IF, 242IF, 250F, 281IF, or the equivalent in transferred credits).

LAC A study of Chaucer's narrative art and its humorous treatments of sexuality, gender, class, religion, and the nature of literature with focus at the end of the semester on Chaucer's ethical positions concerning the use and power of language. Instruction in reading Middle English with modernized spelling versions of the texts also available. Students will have the opportunity to earn LAC extra credit for reading research materials in Latin, French, or Italian.

ENG-328I-S16 Major Authors: Shakespeare 4 06:15PM-09:15PM W MART 209 M. Dolzani
Preq: 6 hours of literature (ENG 126F, 127F, 128F, or one of the former and one of ENG-241IF, 242IF, 250F, 281IF, or the equivalent in transferred credits).

Above is P.M. Day Tuition Rates Apply.

A detailed study of seven major plays.

ENG-336I-S01 Gender & Travel in 18th Cent 4 12:00PM-01:05PM MWF MART 209 A. Boe
Preq: Six hours of literature (ENG 126F, 127F, 128F, or one of the former and one of ENG-241IF, 242IF, 250F, 281IF, or the equivalent in transferred credits). In this course, we'll read a variety of travel narratives (both fictional and non-fictional) in order to explore how eighteenth-century British writers use the representation of travel and intercultural contact to consolidate and/or confuse a sense of British identity. As one of our central preoccupations, we'll consider how gender and race are ideologically central to such conceptions of national identity. Possible texts under consideration include travel narratives by Jonathan Swift, Daniel Defoe, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, Janet Schaw, and Olaudah Equiano.

Service Learning: the America Dream Reconsidered

Core Academic Skill: Oral Communication

Core Academic Skill: Social Interaction

This course is open only to students formally accepted into the Honors Program starting fall 2005 and who have taken LAS 150H. The focus of this course is on service learning---a form of experiential education that allows students to explore the connections between the theoretical world of classroom learning and the practical needs of the community. You will be able to test skills and facts learned in the classroom, sharpen your problem-solving abilities and work collaboratively with diverse groups of people for collective action. You will not only be asked to connect to a community, but to identify your civic roles in that community. You will engage in critical thinking, in public discourse, in collective activity, and community building. At the end of the semester, you will be asked to reflect on what you have learned from your service. The ultimate goal of the course is to make each of you responsible citizens of your world.

Preq: At least one class in Religion, preferably a class in Spirituality. Thomas Merton was the most popular writer on spirituality in the 20th century. This seminar examines Merton's spiritual awakening and development from his days at an English boarding school to his entrance in 1941 in Gethsemani, a Cistercian monastery, to his untimely death in 1968 in Thailand, where he had been involved in a Christian-Buddhist dialogue. Particular attention is given to his spiritual experience and its articulation in contemporary theological and psychological language. Also, attention focuses on his growing work for social justice in the 1960s, as well as his involvement in the interfaith dialogue.
